

Pr. Franck FIESCHI, 46 years, married, 3 children

Université de Grenoble Alpes, France

Institut de Biologie Structurale, 71 Avenue des Martyrs, 38044 Grenoble cedex 9.

Email : franck.fieschi@ibs.fr

University education

2005	Habilitation à Diriger des Recherches (HDR) – Univ. Joseph Fourier, Grenoble.
1996	PhD in Molecular and Cellular Biology – Univ. Joseph Fourier, Grenoble.
1993	Master in Molecular and Cellular Biology – Univ. Joseph Fourier, Grenoble.
1990	Licence In Biochemistry - Université Paris Sud, Orsay.

Scientific Career and awards

2010	Nominated at the Institut Universitaire de France.
2007	Professor in Biochemistry and Structural Biology at Joseph Fourier University, Grenoble. Head of Membrane & Immunity Team in the Structural Biology Institute (IBS).
1998-2007	Assistant Professor in Pr. Eva Pebay-Peyroula group in IBS, Univ. Joseph Fourier - Grenoble.
1997	Post-doctoral fellow in Pr. Britt-Marie Sjöberg laboratory- Stockholm University - Sweden.
1993-1996	PhD in Pr. Marc Fontecave laboratory – Univ. Joseph Fourier, Grenoble

Scientific Interests

Host-Virus Interaction, Defence mechanism : Structural and functional characterisation of membrane proteins of the immune system.

The immune system involves numerous cell-cell interactions, host-pathogens interactions, and cellular activations to initiate the immune response. It requires a broad battery of membrane proteins specific of each cellular type. Their major importance in human health and their membranous nature, position these proteins as challenging objects for basic research as well as for applied medical research. As biochemists, with strong interfaces with physic and chemistry, we work on projects linked to membrane proteins of the immune system.

Innate Immunity : 1) The NADPH oxidase complex of the neutrophil

Host Pathogen interaction: 2) C-type Lectin Receptors of dendritic cells.

Summary of the scientific production (01/2014)

55 Publications in peer-reviewed journals, 2 Patents

h-index : 28 ; Total citations : 3035 ; Average citations per Item : 55,2 (google scholar)

10 Selected papers since 2010 with year of publication IF (amongst 27 published within this period).
